C McMillan (CEO) ADDRESS

Most of you may have seen the announcement that was released to the company website and through the ASX portal yesterday, advising that we are very pleased and quite excited to say that we're about to commence our drilling operations up at our flagship project, Dooloo Creek. Behind the scenes, a lot of work has been accomplished to be prepared for this. We now go into our initial drilling program at Dooloo Creek with a very strong understanding of the geology and a knowledge that has been developed over the years since the initial program of work was undertaken by GGR. We will progress with a single drill rig, a multipurpose rig that can do both diamond drilling and RC drilling. We'll commence our program of work at Dooloo Creek with diamond drill holes; we have four drill holes proposed, and we're going to be targeting some very exciting high-grade rock chip samples that have shown quite phenomenal gold grades across three or four of the project areas that we've identified at Dooloo Creek. Realistically, this is our first opportunity to demonstrate the true potential of the Dooloo Creek project beyond the historic knowledge that we know, in what we would say is a very well-mineralised part of a much larger gold and copper system. Our work will take approximately six to eight weeks to complete, maybe longer, depending on the weather. Of course, we're facing the wet season in Queensland, but all access tracks and drill sites have been prepared. The drill rig is on its way as we speak. Raymond and myself will be heading up to Dooloo Creek early next week and we will be on site for the commencement of the first of our exploration drill holes. So we are very excited about that. In addition to the work we've done and we are proposing to do at Dooloo Creek, we've also taken the first steps to advance our exploration drilling work at our Neila Creek project. Neila Creek is our New South Wales gold and copper prospect at this stage, for which we've pegged our first three drill holes, and we intend, subsequently to the drill program at Dooloo Creek, to commence drilling early in the new year at Neila Creek. So they're the two programs that we're most excited about at this point in time, but we should not forget our third project, which we believe is our smoking gun. Anything is possible with our Alma project. Alma, as you would be aware, is more or less in the shadow of the headframe, an old mining expression, of the fabulous and world-class Mount Morgan gold and copper ore body. We'll begin our work at Alma with just a resumption of very basic exploration techniques of mapping and sampling to understand what it is and where it is we need to be focusing our work in the future. So, for this company, for our company, we're very pleased to be in a position financially to go ahead with this exploration opportunity across our three projects. All I can say is, as Ray mentioned, we wouldn't be here without the support of our fabulous team behind us and our shareholders, and we look forward to giving you further updates in the very near future once we commence our drilling program at Dooloo Creek.

This concluded the CEO address.

The Chair then asked for questions. No Questions.

CLOSURE: The meeting was closed at 4.40pm.

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read 'Raymond Tan', is written over a horizontal line.
